

Translate into Latin and indicate which participle is used.

1) When the sun was rising, the captured soldier, (having) to be led back to the king himself, tried to throw himself into the river.

2) Hannibal, while he was fighting in Italy, sent many conquered men under the shades. pugno (1) Italia, -ae (f) mitto, mittere, misi, missum multus, a, um vinco, vincere, vici, victus sub + acc. umbra, -ae (f)

3) When the first battle had been completed, Hannibal, intending to conquer that town as quickly as possible, sent many men, armed with long spears, toward its walls at night. primus, a, um proelium, -ii (n) conficio, conficere, confeci, confectus vinco, vincere, vici, victus oppidum, oppidi (n) mitto, mittere, misi, missum quam + superlative celer, celeris, celere armo (1) to arm ad + acc. murus, muri (m) nox, noctis (f)

4) This sexy platypus, while he was running toward our city, saw many captured frogs, who were intending to flee into the water at night. formosus, a, um curro, currere urbs, urbis (f) video, videre, vidi, visus
rana, -ae (f) capio, capere, cepi, captus fugio, fugere, fugi, fugitus aqua, -ae (f)

